Staff meeting.

The [redacted] pleasant Prime Minister of Sweden, Tage Erlander, and Mr. Ronhovde paid a courtesy call on me this morning.

They were followed by the Norwegian Ambassador, Mr. Morgenstierne, [redacted] Dean of the Diplomatic Corps here.

George Allen talked to me about the Yugoslav-Italian dispute over Trieste. He is going back to Belgrade in a few days.

John Kelly, [redacted] here on vacation from London, came to see me, bringing [redacted] some clothes and books [redacted] we had left behind in Paris.

I had my regular meeting with Jack McFall, to go over developments in our relationships with Congress.

This afternoon Messrs. Matthews, Jessup, Perkins, Nitze, Bohlen, Lewis, Barbour, Laukhuff and Schwinn met to discuss [redacted] answer to the Soviet [redacted] note.

Later, I went to a meeting where we were briefed on developments in the field of atomic energy, and particularly regarding the H-bomb.

We then had a large meeting, at which Ambassador Locke presented his views on a $100,000,000 program for capital development in the Arab world.

Tonight, we [redacted] dined at Lorraine Cherlin's. Minnie Astor and her sister Barbara Paley, the Pinlettors, Joe Alsop, Jean Daridan, and others, were there.
